

A SURVEY OF NUMISMATIC RESEARCH 2008 – 2013

OCEANIA

General numismatics

Walter R Bloom

A principal source of published information on Australian numismatics has been the Journal of the Numismatic Association of Australia published by the Association, while that for New Zealand is the New Zealand Numismatic Journal published by the Royal Numismatic Society of New Zealand. These two journals contain some meritorious articles on subjects outside the scope of this Survey, in particular papers on ancient numismatics and other topics. In addition there are various State numismatic society publications, the more important of which are the Australian Numismatist (which is ceasing publication after its 2013 volume), the Australian Numismatic Society Queensland Branch News Bulletin and the Queensland Numismatic Society Monthly Magazine. Another source is the Australasian Coin & Banknote Magazine. Finally, there are quite a few articles on Oceania numismatics that have appeared in the British publication Coin News.

In the listings below we start with General articles, followed by Biographies and Obituaries. Then come the relatively small sections on coins of Australia, and New Zealand and Oceania respectively, followed by a substantial section on Merchant tokens of Australia and New Zealand (it would be artificial to split these as the tokens of each country were used in both). There follow sections on Varieties, Bonistics (banknotes and related items), Commercial Chits, Value-Added Check Pieces and Passes, Food tokens, and Badges and Fobs.

Under General is a book by Hamish MacMaster and Martin Purdy on the curious para-numismatic items known as Challenge Coins issued in New Zealand [21]. And David Mee [23] announces a remarkable discovery of 500 year-old Papal seals in a Melbourne coin shop.

The Biographies and Obituaries section includes a detailed article by Peter lane on the South Australian numismatist Francis (Frank) W. Giles [52], and one by Ross Wilkinson on Captain Gerhard Heinrich Heyen [67].

The two sections on coins are small in comparison with the preceding Survey, but it does include some important articles, including Walter Bloom and Colin Pitchfork [69] on the 1921 hoards of Australian and Great Britain silver coins (hoards are an uncommon feature of coins in this part of the world), the specimen 1930 penny by Walter Bloom [70], and Paul Holland's detailed study [76] of the master dies and tools for Australian George V halfpennies and pennies. See also the detailed study of Australian proof coins by Vincent Verheyen [83] – [89]. On the New Zealand side we have the substantial in-depth article by Mark Stocker on the design and introduction of the New Zealand 'Waitangi' Crown of 1935 [96].

A substantial numismatic advance has been the recent book by Simon Gray [99], which is the first major work on merchant tokens since the 1921 publication of Dr Arthur Andrews. The book is extensively illustrated with colour images and lists all known such tokens including their varieties. Mention should also be made of the detailed study by Vaughn Humberstone [101] of the merchants themselves who issued tokens in New Zealand, and that of Frank Robinson [111] on the (State of) Victoria pieces.

Varieties continue to be popular in Australia; in addition to the listed articles, there are regular features in the Australasian Coin & Banknote Magazine.

Banknotes are well studied in Australia and New Zealand, and this is reflected in the large number of articles and books in this area. Mick Vort-Ronald has been particularly prolific and his publications ([165] – [207]) form the main source of information on Australian banknotes.

There has also been considerable interest in commercial chits, value-added check pieces, and passes, with an important booklet by George Dean [235] and a wide-ranging contribution by George Shea [246] – [277]. Articles on bread and milk tokens are listed in a separate section, which includes the booklets [290], [291] (Australia) and [280] (New Zealand).
